company or make it repair by a third party, or, in the last resort, you can withdraw from the contract.

You can modify your choice of request related to the liability for defects, but in this case, you shall bear the costs of the modification, except when the modification is justified, or the company necessitates it.

You are obliged to communicate the default immediately, but not later than within two months from the detection of the default. I draw your attention to the fact that you cannot submit a claim of liability for defects and a claim of product warranty in parallel at time same time for the same defect. However, in case of successful vindication of your product warranty claim, you can vindicate your rights of liability for defects related to the changed product or the repaired part against the manufacturer.

I draw your attention to the fact that you cannot submit a claim of liability for defects and a claim of warranty or a claim of product warranty and a claim of warranty in parallel at time same time for
